Giving thanks for the cottage

JANET TRULL
Special to County Life

The leaves at Thanksgiving are at their peak, but our family is thinking about different leaves these days. The leaves on our family tree.

Ancestry is all the rage right now. My cousin has taken on the task of filling in the branches with names and dates. She has sent in her DNA swab and found that, just as she suspected, she is mostly Irish. There is a rogue drop of Eastern European blood and an unexplainable trace of a Viking, but no big surprises.

The surprise came when we started sorting through the hundreds of old photos in her basement.

For five generations, our genes have been overwhelmingly cottaging genes. Almost every picture shows the ancestors posing in deck chairs or on a

Uncle Ted was the company bugler in the First World War until he lost lung capacity due to mustard gas. When he came home, he hung up his bugle on a nail above the cottage fireplace.

Family meals around the pine table honour ancestors

dock, or in a boat. In our family, if we cut ourselves, we bleed lake water.

Uncle Ted started the cottaging heritage when he built his little cabin on Gull Lake, a quiet sanctuary after returning from the First World War. As the company bugler, he played reveille and drill calls, mess calls, and taps until he lost his lung capacity to the cruel mustard gas in the trenches of France. When he came home, he didn't have the breath to play it, so he hung it on a nail by the cottage fireplace. That battered little bugle is one of the treasures that tell the family stories.

Cottage culture values family collections. Among our favourites are the items used for outdoor skills and survival. There is an old long rifle. A skinning knife. Fishing lures. Cast iron pans. An ice block hook. A couple of cross cut saws.

Here's hoping that the interest in history and heritage continues for generations to come. In this "clutter-free" age, a lot of treasures end up in the thrift store or the landfill. But there is energy in the artifacts, these things that our ancestors held with their own hands.

Cottaging is a bit like curating the family museum. We are the heirs of seasons past, sitting on the same granite outcroppings that the ancestors loved. Launching our canoes in the same deep cold lakes. Listening with reverence to the loon's ancient call. Looking up at the stars and wondering about those who were here before us.

As we prepare the Thanksgiving meal with the traditional favourites (yes, we still must have the time-honoured turnip dish) we know that having family meals around a pine table on a screened in porch is the best way to honour those who look over us from the highest branches of the family tree. We will rake the leaves quietly, so we can hear the sounds they heard. The rustling poplars and the lapping lake and the birds.

Uncle Ted would jump out of his skin if we cranked up a leaf blower.

Who says you can't be stylish when you paddle a boat across a Highlands lake?

Well known local artist John Lennard is also an established professional artist, listed in the Dictionary of Canadian Artists and the book Artists in Canada. He's a member of the Society of Canadian Artists and has been painting for more than 40 years. And he lives right here in Minden Hills

The workings of John Lennard

LAURIE CARMOUNT
Special to County Life

You may have heard of John Lennard the artist. Most local residents know Lennard as our "amazing local artist" whose work we have the pleasure of seeing, year round, at a number of locations. Some have come to know him by traditionally visiting his studio on St. Germaine Street, in Minden, every Canada Day. Some know him as the guy at the Dominion who likes Richard's Red. You may also know him as that super kind man who gives to most fundraisers.

There will be those, too, who know Lennard as a well-established and recognized professional artist; who is listed in the art publication A Dictionary of Canadian Artists as well as Artists in Canada. They may also know Lennard as an elected member of The Society of Canadian Artists. Whichever way you may be acquainted with him, Lennard has a remarkable history. His 40-plus years as a professional artist has given him a wealth of experiences.

The Agnes Jamieson Gallery, in Minden, is bringing in another show-stopping exhibition of John Lennard's work for the remainder of the year. Titled IMPACT, this exhibition begins Oct. 10 and will include Lennard's newest works in his signature style of brilliant, bold colours, depicting our Canadian landscape.

As per every exhibition, the gallery hosts an opening reception. For Lennard, there will be extended receptions that will include curator and artist talks. These talks will delve into Lennard's 40-plus years development as an artist.

The first main reception will be Friday, Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. The other evening talks will be held Oct. 27 and Nov. 10, same time, at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery.

The talks will involve specific, significant turning points in John's career. A majority of these points happened between the 1960s and 1970s, when Lennard was an art student, in New York City, at the Art Students League. Think on that – 1960 – in New York City. This was the dawn of abstract art, and the fast moving evolution of art concepts – and he was in the thick of it. He exhibited there, lived on a shoestring budget there and gained an immense amount of knowledge about art, over beers at the local watering hole.

This time period and the artists that were influential to Lennard will be illustrated with a series of visual slides and short films at each talk.

Some of the talk will also reflect back on what studying at the Ontario College of Art in Toronto was like, and about the instructors who had the most impact on Lennard, such as Carl Shaeffer and Alan Collier.

Each talk is different. Some of the artists touched upon will be European masters, such as Van Gogh, Soutine and Matisse – to name a few. A majority of the journey will be of artists of the 1960s: Franz Kline, Morris Kantor, Joan Mitchell, Forrest Moses, etc.

This is an opportunity to better understand how multi-faceted a professional artist becomes, as they filter through impressions, techniques, styles and presentations of everything around them. You will see comparisons and clues that will unwind some of the reasons to Lennard's style.

This is not by any means a clinical dissection of dry art history – not with John. It will be a time of informal banter and provoking commentary with personal anecdotes and insights into a fascinating time in art.

There is no fee to join in these informative events. Newly acquired André Lapine (1866-1952) ARCA work will also be exhibiting. The Agnes Jamieson Gallery is located at 176 Bobcaygeon Road in the town of Minden. For more information please call 705-286-3763.

Laurie Carmount is curator of the Agnes Jamieson Gallery.

Ten things to do with powerful flashlights

STEVE GALEA
Humour Columnist

EVERY FALL, just before hunting season, I purchase a newer, more powerful flashlight. Here are 10 reasons why you should too.

1. Point it directly at your buddy's eyes and say, "Careful, there's a cliff overlooking the lake somewhere around here."
2. Point the beam towards the lake, and yell, "Hey, this is no time for a swim!"
3. So you can drum up referrals for your favourite ophthalmologist.
4. Download train sound effects to your phone, play them as loud as you can, then turn on your flashlight and charge towards the truck your friend is sitting in.
5. Pray for a power outage so you can look at your wife and say, "Now who's the paranoid one?" as you quick draw it out of your holster.
6. Steal the batteries so you can run the TV remote.
7. Better light sabre imitations.
8. Get a buddy to wear an orange wig and re-enact Trump watching an eclipse.
9. Go in the woods holding two flashlights, make car noises and fool the raccoons into thinking there is no place safe to hide.
10. When asked why you need a 10-million candle power flashlight, look off into the horizon and say, "To shine light on injustice – and to find anything I need in the shed."

Volunteers get saucy

Community volunteers cut, wash and process apples for sauce destined for SIRCH frozen meals and Meals on Wheels on Monday, Sept. 18 at the SIRCH Community Kitchen in Haliburton. The small army of volunteers helped to process a record 912 containers of apple sauce for 1,824 servings of fruit, as part of the fourth annual Apple Sauce Project. The project takes donated apples from around the county to produce apple sauce through a partnership between the Haliburton County Foodnet, SIRCH Community Services, Haliburton Highlands Health Services Community Support Services Division, the municipality of Dysart et al, and the HKPR Health Unit. /DARREN LUM Staff

DO YOU HAVE A CLIENT WHO NEEDS HELP?

ELECTRONIC MONITORING

ASK YOURSELF HOW MUCH YOU KNOW ABOUT TODAY'S ELECTRONIC MONITORING SYSTEMS, AND HOW THEY CAN HELP YOUR CLIENTS.

WE WANT TO HELP YOU IN YOUR QUEST TO HAVE THE COURTS RELEASE YOUR CLIENTS ON EITHER A PRETRIAL BAIL, OR FROM AN IMMIGRATION HOLD SITUATION.

- You will help your client's chances of release if you advise the court that in addition to your client's sureties you will be adding the use of GPS Electronic Monitoring of your client as an additional security measure.
- When your client is also willing to pay for (with no cost to the taxpayer) the electronic monitoring system and be monitored and tracked 24/7/365, the court may gain a higher level of security regarding "fear of flight".
- We at TraTek can help on a case-by-case basis with such things as notarized affidavits, and/or we can testify at the hearings. If we testify we can explain to the court about how the new electronic monitoring systems work, and just what can be done with the software that runs the systems.
- Electronic Monitoring can not only be helpful for both immigration issues and pretrial bail supervision but it can also be helpful when used for conditional sentences, probation, parole, domestic disputes, and child protection. Including child custody or access issues.
- If you would like to learn more about how we can help both you and your client give us a toll free call at 1-888-850-9691, and ask for Len.

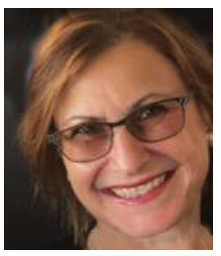
Open-hearted in the Haliburton Highlands

FOR A LOT of Canadians, the Thanksgiving images that come to mind are of family gatherings and a big ham or turkey dinner. For me, growing up, memories are of picnic lunches and hikes around the Bancroft area.

My dad had an old government map of the mines and we'd walk the rail car tracks and abandoned open pits searching for hidden gems. We'd lunch on the rocks at Eagle's Nest Lookout: tuna and relish sandwiches, homemade peanut butter cookies, and apples we'd picked from the lone tree in a field. And the vista below, wow: the York River, the airport, the fall colours. It was breathtaking. There was lots to feel appreciation for.



MARCI MANDEL

On The White Trail

When I married and bought a place here, Alan and I combined the two traditions and went for a hike while the turkey roasted. So many fond moments over the years, so many different guests – such a rich tradition. How fortunate we are to be able to walk out the door and have wilderness right there to explore.

Through the years, I've brought home many artifacts from my rambles: rocks, flowers, bones, photographs, but mostly insights. Just a few days ago I came across bear scat by some blueberry bushes. Being nothing new, I kept walking, but 10 steps later I had a feeling there was something to understand from this, something to connect with. So I walked back over the rocky ridge and stood over it and imagined I'd merged with the bear's energy. My hands were over my head and a documentary I'd just seen, Whose Streets? about the Ferguson police shooting of unarmed teenager, Michael Brown, came to mind. Activist leaders had instructed protesters to walk with their hands up, a symbol of surrender, of not fighting back, and I realized I needed to revisit this. What thoughts had I been clinging onto that now needed to be dropped?

Or maybe it wasn't that at all. Today I'm thinking maybe it was about putting my hands up in appreciation of the wonder I was surrounded by. How interesting that the same gesture can have two different meanings. Perhaps reading nature is like reading Tarot; it reflects what's in our subconscious at the moment.

Nature has always been there for me, to hold me, to listen to me, to test and challenge me. She really has been Mother Earth. With her "river of grief" and "the crystal healing caves," she has always been there to comfort me – physically or in my imagination.

I know many people feel the same way about nature, including my grandchildren who love playing with my rock and seashell collections. So I don't know what it is that disconnects when some folks drive a distance to get here, make the effort to hike in, then leave a mess along the trail. Why do they cut down live trees? Why do they leave garbage at campsites? Why do they leave toilet paper anywhere? How do we educate these people? Is fining them the only way to make them care?

I can only hope they are touched by their experience in the arms of the Great Mother and vow to do better next time. We all have that kindred spark in us and knowing how to keep it lit has to be learned just the same way knowing how to keep a campfire lit. Instructions can be found in a book, but actually connecting with it takes an openness, a letting down of a guard.

We are fortunate to live in a community of generosity and care. I hope the guarded ones wander into town and pick up the cues and soon learn to unwind so their heart and hands work together – work with integrity.

We have attracted many visitors to our community this year, with the arts festival, the drum festival, the hiking festival and all the camps, resorts and cottages. We have something pretty special here.

We are something pretty special here.

Visitors feel our kindness and generosity and they come back.

We are Mother Earth, welcoming them all.

Welcoming them all.

Nature is a comforting force for many of us, there to provide energy and support. Through the generations, the magic of a walk in the woods resonates. /MARCI MANDEL Special to County Life

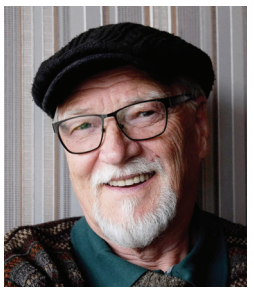
A time for giving thanks

IT'S THE TIME of year that signifies the end of summer; shortened days, crisp cool nights, the changing of leaves to red, gold and yellow, and the bountiful harvest of matured and ripened crops. It's a time for vegetation to start a slow death after expending so much energy in growth. It's also a time for hibernating mammals to fatten up and store foods in preparation for the long winter ahead. For humans it's a time of plenty, and a time to give thanks for that bounty.



GEORGE FARRELL

On Arts

Going way back to pagan times in Europe, harvest time with its Harvest Festival, was traditionally held on the Sunday of the harvest moon; the full moon that occurs closest to the autumn equinox, on the 22 or 23 of September. As a small boy in England, I remember harvest time as a church day, where we sang hymns, and decorated the church with fruits and vegetables. I vividly remember taking a huge marrow, (which is like a squash), to the church. I remember accidentally dropping it at the altar and seeing it split in two. I remember crying at my clumsiness, and then an adult helping me to pick it up and to place it carefully among all the other vegetables surrounding the altar, in such a way as to not show that it was broken. So for me this time of year is also a time for memories.

Our family does not have a religious tradition, so I don't know why I was in the church. It may possibly have had something to do with a school ceremony. Harvest festivals in Europe were traditionally tied to religion, the ideas being that it was a time to give thanks to God for his generosity in providing the harvest food; and many schools used harvest time to teach the concept of thankfulness.

From giving thanks came the word Thanksgiving which is what we call our harvest festivals in North America. Thanksgiving usually features a meal consisting of turkey with cranberry sauce, with pumpkin pie and ice cream for dessert. Thanksgiving is a national holiday in the U.S. and in Canada, with the Canadian Thanksgiving occurring on the second Monday of October in Canada, and on the first Thursday of November in the U.S. There is some documentation both in Canada and the U.S. of Indigenous peoples helping early settlers, by showing them which crops to plant, and when to harvest them. So thanks should be extended to those who were already here when our ancestors landed. And I would personally also like to thank Prime Minister Justin Trudeau who recently gave a talk to the United Nations General Assembly where he acknowledged that we must "right the historic wrongs" done to Indigenous peoples.

Thanksgiving is a time of year to be with family. This year we were fortunate in having youngest son Tyson and his Danish girlfriend Malene come over for a visit from Copenhagen, where they both live and work. The visit was a little before our Thanksgiving, but Malene was saying that the concept of turkey dinners and Thanksgiving was gaining popularity in Denmark, where formerly there had been no such custom. While she was here, Malene had her first taste of pumpkin pie, which she wasn't sure she liked. I guess it's an acquired taste. Tyson and Malene have returned to Europe, but our other son Brendan, who works in the hospitality industry in Banff, will be coming home for a 10 day visit over Thanksgiving, which is his favourite holiday.

Brendan loves his turkey almost as much as he loves his beer. He's a craft brewery aficionado and the number of craft brews he's supped across this fair land probably lies in the hundreds. So I look forward to our tasting some local brews together. Perhaps most of all though I'm looking forward to the walks in the woods, with crispy, fallen leaves a riotous, colourful carpet, scrunching underneath our feet, while others fall randomly from the canopy above. The dogs will be running ahead, through the woods, come rain or shine, and the exercise of keeping up with them will only serve to sharpen our appetites for the turkey and pie.

We've lived in the Highlands for more than 30 years now, and we have so much to be thankful for, but I'd like to give special thanks to my parents, who brought me to Canada in 1955, to Michelle, who has stood by me through thick and thin, to our sons Tyson and Brendan who have grown to be fine young men, and to all my friends who have made this life more enjoyable.

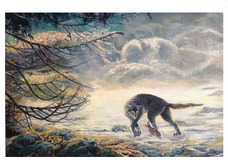
Z Carole Finn, OSA – FINN ARTISTS' CENTER Painter, Printmaker



"My paintings, which are done in series, are an attempt to show beautiful locations whose natural integrity has either been altered by human intervention or is about to be. What is the cost of our imposition on the virginal status of these lands and the inhabitants therein? My hope is that by painting these areas with passion and expression, I can create an awareness in each of us that we have a responsibility to ourselves and to the land to answer this question. It is for the good of all of us that we find the best choices which the voices of all living species that are unheard whether on land or sea." W Dar Bolahood / Charly Sylge – Guest Artists Wild Haliburton Elephant Weavers (WHEW Inc.)

When we began the adventure known as WHEW 9 years ago, our goal was to produce an everlasting luxurious product that would be cherished today and handed down tomorrow. There is nothing more comforting in our 'Throw away society' knowing that WHEW throws are never really owned by one individual, they are merely taken care of for the next generation. We take the strongest and softest of all luxury fibres, Kid Mohair, and produce not only blankets of impecable structured design and quality but sometimes extreme and passionate works of art. Our customers tell us that these are the most beautiful, luxurious and practical throws available worldwide and the outstanding array of colours and truly one of a kind designs are a wonder to behold. Along with our throws we also offer scarves, neck-pieces and accessories all woven, or knit from the wonder that is Kid Mohair.

A tour through France, Switzerland and beyond

MACHENZIE NEUMANN
Transat Travel

In late June/early July, my husband and I embarked on our two-week honeymoon through France, Switzerland, Germany and The Netherlands. We started off by flying to Marseille, France, on a direct flight with Air Transat, we upgraded to emergency exit seats and option plus, which provided us with extra perks such as extra luggage allowance (not that he needed it), priority check in and boarding, priority luggage handling, comfort kit, and a few coupons for some champagne on board the flight. Well worth it to be treated like royalty.

While in Marseille, we stayed right in the old Vieux Port, from our balcony we had sweeping views of the city and the port, we ended up taking the high-speed train from Marseille to Paris for a day: 800 km in just over three hours is not a bad day trip. While in Paris we did all the usual touristy sightseeing before heading back to Marseille.

After our three days in Marseille we took the train to Lucerne, Switzerland, which is by far one of my favourite destinations. It was my second time to Lucerne and it seems to be just as beautiful in the summer time as it was in the winter. Lucerne is a beautiful little city tucked right in the Swiss Alps, a nature lover's paradise with many glacier fed lakes, hiking trails and mountains to explore including Mt. Pilatus, which you can either hike up or take the gondola up 6,700 feet to enjoy sweeping views of the Swiss Alps. After our stay in Lucerne, we travelled up to Basel where we embarked on our seven-night Rhine Getaway cruise with Viking Cruise Lines.

We stepped onto the ship and within minutes of being on board all of the staff knew us by name; we were taken to our room, which had a French balcony; the room was stunning. On board the ship they had a beautifully appointed bar and lounge area, an outdoor terrace for those who wanted a lighter meal, a large dining room where they served us some incredible meals: eggs Benedict, homemade soups and sandwiches, local German cuisine, surf and turf and my absolute favourite: Chateaubriand. On the top deck they had a walking track, shuffleboard, mini golf and many chairs and tables set up so you could sit out to enjoy while cruising along the Rhine River. Viking offers three different room categories to pick from: balcony, French balcony and small porthole window. They also include wine and beer with your lunch and dinner, but offer you the choice to upgrade to their beverage package for 150€ per person. Well worth it. Viking includes one guided tour for each port you visit with the option of also purchasing additional tours. We did all of the included tours and were not disappointed one bit. We did tours of the famous Black Forest, Marksburg Castle, Kinderdijk windmills in The Netherlands and many more.

Lucerne, Switzerland, is a small city tucked in the Swiss Alps, a nature lover's paradise with glacier-fed lakes, hiking trails and mountains to explore.

We had many stops on our cruise in unique little towns; some of my favourite places we stopped were Strasbourg, France, a UNESCO world heritage site; and Heidelberg, Germany, one of the oldest university towns in Germany with old baroque buildings and cobblestone streets. Another favourite was Rudesheim, Germany, where we had some of the best veal schnitzel and enjoyed wandering around the little town until dark. Cologne, Germany was also a favourite because of all the different bierhauses we went to our final stop in Amsterdam was nothing short of entertaining.

We would like to thank all of our clients for being very patient and understanding during this busy hurricane season, which has left many families and countries devastated. Stay tuned for Linda's next article on the islands that were not hit and where the popular destinations will be this winter as well she will mention her upcoming trip to Italy (yes, yet another Italy trip!).

Viking River Cruises offers three different room categories: balcony, French balcony and small porthole window.

Share your perspective on health care

Local health providers are looking for the public's input as they shape the Rural Health Hub site at Haliburton Highlands Health Services.

HHHS wants the hub to be a "made-in-Haliburton" initiative that "enhances patient experience across the continuum of care," a release from the organization says.

So far, they have spoken with other stakeholders including service providers, patients, politicians and others. The questionnaire is online and can be accessed from Oct. 2 to 15 at https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/YRT7J5W. You can also pick up a paper copy at the following locations: Dollo's Foodland; Minden, Haliburton and Highlands East food banks; Haliburton Foodland; HHHS business offices in Minden and Haliburton; HHHS CSS office in Haliburton; HHHS mental health office in Minden; Todd's Independent Grocer; the LHIN Home and Community Supports (formerly CCAC); midwifery services; Minden Valu-mart; all municipal offices; Ontario Early Years; Point in Time; SIRCH Community Services; and the family health team.

Haliburton Highlands Fundraising Banquet: It's a birthday bash

The Haliburton Highlands Land Trust announced that after last year's success at their new venue, they are planning to hold their annual fundraising banquet once again at the Pinestone Resort and Conference Centre.

"Our largest fundraiser of the year helps us to continue our work to maintain and protect our properties for future generations to enjoy, and provides funding to bring educational programs on sound stewardship practices to our community," said land trust chairwoman Mary-Lou Gerstl.

The fundraising banquet is being held on Sunday, Oct. 22. Guests will enjoy a pre-dinner reception with hors d'oeuvres, a specially prepared dinner, silent, live and toonie auctions, featuring many specialty items made and donated by Haliburton County's diverse and talented arts community. Social hour and silent auction begin at 4:30 p.m., dinner at 6 p.m., with prizes and the announcement of this year's Enviro-heroes after dinner.

Their theme this year is a Birthday Bash. Come celebrate with friends and fellow supporters of the HHLT. They have many birthdays to celebrate this year. Of course, Canada's and Dysart et al's 150th, along Haliburton Highlands Land Trust's Norah's Island Ecogifts acquisition 10 years ago. "Wear your best red and white if you dare," said board director Sheila Ziman.

Anyone wishing to attend the fundraiser or make a donation to one of the special auctions can do so by contacting the Haliburton Highlands Land Trust by phone at 705-457-3700, or online at haliburtonlandtrust.ca. Remember a healthy economy depends on a healthy environment and all funds raised at the HHLT fundraiser to go toward continuing the group's environmental work in our community.

HALIBURTON HIGHLANDS HEALTH SERVICES
Leaders in Innovative Rural Health Care

The Haliburton Highlands Health Services (HHHS) currently has exciting opportunities available for energetic individuals to join the team!

DIRECTOR, FACILITIES AND PROJECTS

Permanent Full-time

The Director, Facilities and Projects is responsible for providing strategic and operational oversight for all aspects of the facility's physical buildings and grounds. In addition, this position provides leadership and mentorship to the Manager, Environmental Services and Plant Operations, ensuring effective and efficient operation of all aspects of the department including general maintenance, housekeeping and laundry. The Director, Facilities and Projects is also responsible for the planning, organizing and implementation of all projects pertaining to the physical buildings and/or their operations, and the grounds. The successful candidate will be a graduate of a recognized educational institution with certificate of qualification in Architecture, Electrical/Mechanical Engineering, Stationary Engineering, Structural Engineering, or equivalent building related field. The candidate will also have a minimum of five (5) years progressive management experience in Engineering/Facility Services, preferably in a hospital and/or long-term care environment, and demonstrating extensive knowledge of systems such as HVAC, plumbing, electrical, mechanical and code compliance. Water System Certification or willingness to obtain is also required.

PERSONAL SUPPORT WORKERS

Causal Positions in Long-Term Care

The Personal Support Worker provides resident care in relation to activities of daily living, quality of life, environment management and continuous communication. The successful candidate must have completed a Personal Support Worker program which meets one of the following and be a minimum of 600 hours in duration, counting both class time and practical experience time:

- The vocational standards established by the Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities,
- The standards established by the National Association of Career Colleges, or
- The standards established by the Ontario Community Support Association.

RNs and RPNs

Causal Positions in Long-Term Care

Opportunities also exist for nurses to provide holistic care to residents at Hyland Crest, a 62-bed facility in Minden, and in Haliburton at a 30-bed facility, Highland Wood. As a member of the health care team, the RN and RPN has a unique role in promoting health, preventing illness, and helping residents attain and maintain the highest level of health possible. The successful candidate will possess a diploma/degree in Nursing and a current Certificate of Competence from the College of Nurses of Ontario. Recent experience in long-term care setting is preferred.

Additional information about these opportunities is available at hhhs.ca/careers. If you are interested in joining our team for any of the above positions, please submit your resume to:

Fort Irwin supports Point in Time

JANET TRULL
Special to County Life

Brad and Maria Willing of the Fort Irwin Marina give a donation to Point in Time executive director Marg Cox, centre, outside their business. Each year, the Willings give a donation to a local charity from donations their customers contribute combined with their own matching donation. This year, the Haliburton Lake Cottagers' Association also contributed as well as a local dinner club. /JANET TRULL Special to County Life

Fort Irwin Marina is a seasonal business. Owners, Brad and Maria Willing, are run off their feet from May to October. The marina is the hub of the community, with people coming and going by car and by boat. It is the information centre, where tourists stop for directions, cottagers get advice and permanent residents get the local news. It is also the place to give back to the community.

"We are the lucky ones," Maria says. "People who pass through here in the summer are usually on holidays. They are enjoying a good point in their lives. But every year, I like to remind people that there are those in Haliburton County who are not so fortunate."

For many years, Brad and Maria have kept a collection box by the till. It is not a tip jar. It is a place to put the change from purchases. And it adds up. At the end of the summer, the Willings contribute their own donation to match what their customers have given.

Every year, the charity chosen is different, Volunteer Dental Outreach, Fuel for Warmth, and the food bank to name a few. This year, Maria and Brad are giving the Fort Irwin funds to Point in Time.

"Mental health is so important," Maria says. "Children and teenagers are especially vulnerable right now, with so much anxiety to deal with in the world. Point in Time is a local organization that makes a difference for families without judgment. Their website reminds us that there is a point in time when families need the support of a caring professional."

Services at Point in Time are free to families in our Haliburton County communities who are experiencing difficulties in a wide range of issues. The organization believes that "all children and youth achieve their greatest potential within caring, responsive families and communities."

They identify needs, provide services to parents, and support children and youth. Early intervention is best, helping families to recognize their own skills and strengths, and promoting the well-being of kids and teens in the critical formative years of development. Point in Time also deals with family crises, including conflicts with the law.

Maria Willing says, "We chose this organization for the 2017 Fort Irwin Charity because it is proactive, respectful, and confidential. Raising children these days has a lot of challenges, and Point in Time is there for our local families. Thanks to everyone who contributed. It's a community effort. Included in the total is $100 from the Haliburton Lake Cottagers Association and $203 from the local dinner club, raised in lieu of hostess gifts."

The collection jar had $409.70, and the Willings matched that amount, with their own donation of $409.70, bringing the total to $1,122.40. Marg Cox, the executive director at Point in Time, says that they depend on community partnerships, grants and donations. This gift really makes a difference.

Meanwhile, the Fort Irwin Marina goes about their fall work of winterizing and storing boats. Despite all the factors that impacted the marina business this year, including spring flooding and record-setting rain, the Willings have made it to the end of another successful season. The community counts on them. Where else in Fort Irwin can you get a loaf of bread, a newspaper and gas for the boat?

And one more thing. A chance to contribute to a local charity.

Proud Supporter of our Local Fire Fighters
RE/MAX

In a fire, seconds count. Seconds can mean the difference between residents of our community escaping safely from a fire or having their lives end in tragedy.

That's why this year's Fire Prevention Week theme: "Every Second Counts: Plan 2 Ways Out!" is so important. It reinforces why everyone needs to have an escape plan. Here's this year's key campaign messages:

- Draw a map of your home with all members of your household, marking two exits from each room and a path to the outside from each exit.
- Practice your home fire drill twice a year. Conduct one at night and one during the day with everyone in your home, and practice using different ways out.
- Teach children how to escape on their own in case you can't help them.
- Make sure the number of your home is clearly marked and easy for the fire de partment to find.
- Close doors behind you as you leave – this may slow the spread of smoke, heat, and fire.
- Once you get outside, stay outside. Never go back inside a burning building.

Your local Fire Department also reminds you that smoke alarms are required on every storey of your home and outside all sleeping areas. Test all of your smoke alarms monthly by push-ing the test button on the alarm, and replace batteries at least once a year or when the alarm's low battery signal begins to chirp.

FIRE MOVES FASTER THAN YOU!
When a fire starts you don't have time to figure out how to escape.
Make an escape plan BEFORE there's a fire so you can get out safely.
EVERY SECOND COUNTS!
EVERY SECOND COUNTS!
PLAN
2 WAYS OUT!
Contact your local fire department about how to develop a home fire escape plan.

Arts council celebrates successful DysART Trail project

JENN WATT
County Life Editor

The Haliburton Highlands Arts Council celebrated the completion of the DysART Trail at a special ceremony at the Rails End Gallery on Wednesday, Sept. 27.

The special project put artwork up around Dysart et al to mark the community's 150th anniversary year.

Eleven local artists with work that depicts the history or natural beauty of the area were selected and their pieces displayed in buildings in the municipality.

Their locations were also marked on a special tour within the PocketSights app with corresponding videos created by Sticks and Stones Productions. Local writers Pauline Johnson and Sharon Lawrence assisted with writing about the artwork and the artists for the app.

Funding came from Haliburton County Development Corporation, the County of Haliburton's tourism department and the arts council.

Among the artists on the tour were Gregor Gillespie, Rossana Dewey, Gwynneth Heaton, Janet Bradley, Laurie O'Reilly, Susan Hay, Terry Wright, Sheila Ziman, Jane Selbie and Tim Payment.

The exhibition runs until Oct. 10.

Artists chat at the Rails End Gallery on Wednesday, Sept. 27 at the celebration of the DysART Trail. The project put up locally significant art pieces around the municipality to mark Dysart et al's 150th anniversary. /JENN WATT Staff

Minden Winter Carnival lives another year

by Andy Holloway

It looks like the Minden Winter Carnival will live for at least one more year after residents banded together to save the annual fair.

About 15 people, including Minden councillors, attended a meeting last Wednesday night in an effort to save the carnival which was dropped by the Kinsmen who ran the event for the past 20 years. Representatives from the Legion, Lions Club, Kinsmen and Minden Skating Club were at the meeting as were several residents with no club affiliation.

All present at the meeting agreed the carnival should be geared to children. To this end, the carnival will undergo some important changes to make it more attractive to children and their families and also to cut down on costs.

"The problem is not finances, the problem is what are we going to do"

The carnival was intially organized as a means of raising funds for the Kinsmen Club while providing a weekend of winter activities. Last year's carnival, however, operated at $1,000 in the red. The club says it cost about $10,000 to put on last year's events while income was just $9,000. Despite this poor financial picture, the club still has $4,700 left in its carnival budget that will be passed on to the new organizers.

"We do have a nest egg to kick us off with so it's not as if we're stuck with nothing," said Minden Reeve and new committee chair Bern Berry. "The problem is not finances, the problem is what are we going to do, what ideas do we have and where are we going to get the manpower?"

Kinsmen president Jim Carrell said the committee should be "prepared to be amazed" when expenses do start rolling in. Winn Newbury, who was one of the first organizers of the event, said in the beginning the carnival didn't even have a budget, yet things still got done and everyone had a good time. Those who remembered the carnival's heyday in the 1970s said it was because the children were involved and so were the schools.

Gone are such events as the MuchMusic video dance party which lost money last year. In its place the new organizers want a return to the types of events the carnival had in its beginning years. A Carnival Queen and King contest, torch light parade, bonfire and a figure skating exhibition are being looked at for Friday night to kick off the weekend.

On Saturday events like a baseball tournament, cross-country ski races, arm wrestling, helicopter rides, sleigh rides, card games for seniors and a dinner are being planned. And yes, there will be a dance, although Berry said the format will have to be decided later by the committee which is comprised of Lisa Connelly, Dwight Thomas, Brian Moore and Jeanne Anthon. Moore was representing the chamber of commerce and the Lions Club. He said the chamber does not have the resources to help financially, but it will help spread the word.

Sunday's featured plans include ice skating, skating races, and a pancake breakfast. During the weekend the Kinsmen will have their regular ice car races and the curling club is hosting a bonspiel.

O'Reilly turns Haliburton red

Thirt yeight years of patience finally paid off as heavy turnouts at the polls brought the Liberals back to the forefront in Victoria-Haliburton.

Almost 71 percent of the eligible voters in Haliburton County cast their ballots last Monday, and the result was a surprisingly strong win for John O'Reilly.

The Liberal candidate picked up 20,511 votes, beating out Reformer Barry Devolin by almost 5,000 votes.

Although O'Reilly will not be sworn in as this riding's Member of Parliament until later this week, he is already receiving dozens of calls from constituents in need of help from their representative. Former MP Bill Scott's constituency office was closed down early last week.

Victoria-Haliburton has been a Conservative stronghold for the past 38 years. Scott, who filled the post for the past 27 years, announced his retirement prior to the election call. The Tories chose Lindsay lawyer Lorne Chester as their candidate this time around, but the best he could manage it this nationwide Liberal sweep was a third-place finish with 12,387 votes.
